

STATE YOUR PASSION

Native Women in Science Scholarship

Are you passionate about science? Do you picture yourself working with animals, plants, in the behavioral sciences? Perhaps mathematics, engineering, biomedical or physical sciences, natural resources or the environment? Let your passion guide you and apply today for the Native Women in Science Scholarship.

Colorado State University's purpose is to ensure students are able to realize their dreams and impact the world through access to innovative and relevant academic programming. The College of Natural Sciences and the Native Women in Science Scholarship will help get you there.

This is our time ... time to rise to the heights to which we are called. Join us.

How to Apply

- 1. Demonstrate Financial Need. Fill out your FAFSA!
(Free Application for Federal Student Aid form)
- 2. Complete your scholarship application through the CSUSA (CSU Scholarship Application) online
Apply at ramweb.colostate.edu by March 1 deadline
- 3. Upload your documentation to confirm Indian Ancestry
Tribal enrollment, Certificate of Degree of Indian Blood, Letter from a tribal official documenting family affiliation
- 4. Request Letter of recommendation from teacher or professor
- 5. Write your Personal Statement
Tell us about you, what drew you to the sciences, and the positive difference you expect this scholarship to provide

Colorado State University

College of Natural Sciences Colorado State University
Fort Collins, CO 80523-1801
(970) 491-1300
<http://www.natsci.colostate.edu>
<http://admissions.colostate.edu>